

TIME TO PURGE THE B.B.C.

Broadcasting empire is fifth column in Britain

A GREAT WAIL OF PROTEST has greeted the action of Special Branch detectives raiding the Glasgow offices of the BBC to obtain documents of evidence concerning the security leak involved in the preparations for the programme on the Zircon spy satellite. The protest comes mainly from Labour and Alliance politicians, as it is assumed that the raid took place with Government knowledge and even under Government orders. The Government is currently frantic to deny this. There is meanwhile a lot of hot air being emitted on the subject of the so-called 'freedom' of broadcasters being endangered.

Far from believing the Glasgow raid unjustified, we think that such raids should have taken place long ago. And as for the Government denying knowledge of or complicity with the raid, we see no reason why it should be doing so. For far too long this Government has tolerated our supposedly 'national' broadcasting institution being used by the nation's enemies for the purpose of subversion and other anti-British propaganda and activities. It is high time that someone acted to curb the BBC.

The 'British' Broadcasting Corporation has today become nothing better than a fifth column in our midst, serving the cause of Britain's enemies within as well as without. Its staff comprises a hotbed of communists and other varieties of subversive, all paid handsome salaries at the expense of the nation's licence-holders to undermine national security, national independence, the national identity and the national interest.

STREAM OF PROPAGANDA

BBC programmes, on both television and radio, represent a never-ending stream of propaganda aimed against the British nation and people. This is the case with programmes broadcast under the guise of popular 'entertainment' just as much as with the more overtly serious political and current affairs programmes. All have the stamp of 'Big Brother' as cost in Orwell's Nineteen Eighty Four, being designed to bend the minds of the British people in support of doctrines and policies conducive to national destruction.

That the BBC has co-operated in the making of the programme on the Zircon satellite with such a creature as Duncan Campbell is an indication of its subversive intent. Campbell is a notorious far-leftist who specialises in writing articles and preparing material for TV programmes of a kind calculated to undermine national security. And Campbell is not the only left-wing extremist who has access to BBC channels. Others, such as Paul Foot, Clare Short, Bernie Grant and Ken Livingstone often have a platform.

Many Tories have lately been making noises of opposition to the 'left-wing bias' of the BBC, but in fact the Tory quarrel with the BBC cuts only skin-deep. At the end of the day, the Government (presently a Tory one) has the power to appoint and dismiss members of the BBC Board of Governors, who in turn have power of appointment of BBC staff. If the Tories were serious about cleaning out the nest of subversives in the Corporation, they would long ago have made sweeping changes in the composition of the Board, ensuring the appointment of Governors who would see to it that the BBC was staffed from top to bottom by people who would operate it as it should be operated: as an institution belonging to the nation and serving the nation. No such Board of Governors has ever been appointed, despite the fact that Britain has had a Tory Government now for nearly 8 years. This leads many discerning people to believe that, at root, the Tory Government and the leftists in the BBC see themselves in common cause, only on occasions disputing with each other over minor details. Tories are perhaps apprehensive when the BBC operates its left-wing bias too blatantly, as that makes the public suspicious and leads to too many embarrassing questions being asked!

A lot of nonsense is spouted about the BBC. In the first case the BBC is not in fact 'independent' — the power of appointment of its Board by the Government makes that clear. In the second place, neither should the BBC be independent. By what right has any group of people wielding the enormous power that goes with control of broadcasting services be a law unto themselves, not responsible to the nation that pays for their upkeep?

SERVING THE NATION

Under conditions where Britain had a truly national and patriotic government, the correct procedure would be for the BBC to be firmly answerable to that government, and as such obliged to use the broadcasting services entrusted to their care for the nation and in the interests of the nation. When the happy day comes when we have such a government, one of the first priorities will be a massive purge of BBC personnel that will clean out the Augean stables of the Corporation from top to bottom.

The British National Party is pledged to undertake that vital task, and when the time comes to carry it out not all the screams and all the wails of leftists and liberals everywhere will stop us in our resolve.

TEMPLE OF SUBVERSION

A hotbed of leftists and anti-British traitors, the BBC is long overdue for a big clean-out

Tory students try to steal BNP policies

A GROUP of Tory students attending the recent Young Conservatives' conference at Scarborough put forward a series of resolutions that look as if they were taken straight out of the manifesto of the British National Party.

The student group comprised ex-members of the now disbanded Federation of Conservative Students, who have reorganised themselves under the name of 'Conservative Students'. At the conference they called for the return of hanging, withdrawal from the Common Market and the bringing back of the law forbidding homosexual acts. On the question of inner-city rioting, they advocated that "Riot police must be properly trained and equipped to deal with such disorder. Tear gas and water cannon must be used as required. The 'softly, softly' approach to policing which has operated in areas like Brixton since the iniquitous Scarman Report must stop immediately."

All this is of course pure, unadulterated BNP policy, and in passages looks even as if it has been copied word-for-word from BNP literature. Yet the students putting it forward had the nerve — not to say the blatant dishonesty — to call it 'radical Thatcherism'.

In fact, apart from the question of capital punishment, on which Mrs. Thatcher voted in favour in the last Commons debate on the subject, such policies do not represent the Prime Minister's views at all. She is ardently pro-Market. She was instrumental both in choosing Lord Scarman to make his report on the Brixton riots in 1981 and then implementing the soft policing policy recommended in that report. She has never favoured the return of the anti-queer law that was in operation until it was repealed — with the disastrous consequences we can now see — in the 1960s.

Indeed, such ideas as the ones voiced by the students at the YC

conference cannot be regarded as fitting into any category of 'conservatism' at all; they are wholly contrary to the policies that the Tory Party has pursued throughout modern times and do not have the slightest chance of being adopted by the party leadership today. Indeed one senior Tory who was present at the conference said of the people who put the policies forward: "These people are nothing to do with us. They are independent of the Conservative Party. We don't want to know them."

Instead of their indulging in the pretence of presenting these policies as 'conservative', let alone 'Thatcherite', the honest thing for these Tory students to do would be to acknowledge that they represent the nationalist viewpoint of the BNP and to join the BNP to campaign for them. Some Tory students have already done this. The remainder should follow them. Were they to take that course, their advocacy of such radical policies might be respected. As it is, their theft of these policies from the nationalist camp and their attempt to claim them as 'conservative' simply puts them among the many liars, fakers and plagiarists who litter that party from top to bottom.

THE TORIES ARE TRAITORS

BRITAIN is today a country in headlong collapse. In 40 years it has declined from the status of a great industrial power that stood at the head of the world's greatest empire to that of a run-down multi-racial island off the coast of Europe whose economy has contracted to a point where millions are more or less permanently unemployed, and whose citizens can no longer even be guaranteed the benefits of law and order. This national decay has not been an accident, or some act of God over which Britain's rulers have had no control.

On the contrary, the whole process has only been possible because those rulers have been aiding and abetting it. Whatever the party labels of those in power, they have all worked for the progressive destruction of Great Britain.

Britain's former empire has been surrendered to the coloured races, often by trickery and deceit practised against our white kinsfolk within the colonial territories, who had originally built them up on Britain's behalf. The parasites of international finance in the City of London have been given a free hand to export British investment capital to build up our foreign competitors for their own profit, with the active encouragement of all governments (most notably the present one), leaving British industry devastated and millions of British workers on the dole. Vast coloured immigration into Britain has been not only permitted but positively connived at.

Throughout the larger part of this period, the Tories have been the party in power. Tory professions of 'patriotism' have masked Tory complicity in Britain's degradation to her present status in the world. Betrayal has in fact been the norm under Tory governments.

Where Labour governments have introduced anti-British legislation, the Tories, when they have been returned to office, have not only left such legislation on the statute book but have enthusiastically applied it themselves. The prime example of this has been the series of 'race relations' acts. The present Tory government has prosecuted, and made political prisoners of, more opponents and critics of multi-racialism than any other.

Indeed, under the present Tory regime the process of national collapse has accelerated to an unprecedented pace. During Mrs. Thatcher's premiership Britain has virtually ceased to be an industrial power, and non-white race riots in Britain's cities have become a regular occurrence — with the Thatcher government not just lacking the ability but obviously not even having the wish nor the will to control these eruptions of violence.

It is in this way that, under this Tory government, a climate has come about in which the forces of left-wing revolution have been able to flourish as never before, gaining their present stranglehold over the Labour Party.

In 8 years of office the Tories have done nothing to stop this tendency. Now, with breathtaking nerve, Mrs. Thatcher is trying to 'con' British voters that she intends to take some kind of action against the 'lunatic left', which her own policies and attitudes have done so much to promote.

It is vital that the British people soon understand that the Tories, no less than the others, are traitors to race and nation.

EARLIER THIS YEAR, as a wave of thousands of coloured immigrants, mainly from the Indian sub-continent, flooded into Britain, the Thatcher government tried to 'con' the British electorate that its introduction of visa requirements for such immigrants (many of whom were posing as 'tourists' or 'temporary visitors' but subsequently remaining to settle illegally) would somehow have the effect of stemming the immigrant flood. The lie is given to this claim in a report by the pro-immigrant Race Relations Committee of the House of Commons, which is composed of MPs from all the major parties at Westminster.

This report makes it plain that immigration from Bangladesh alone is "set to continue at about 5,000 a year for the foreseeable future," most of this number concentrating in the single London Borough of Tower Hamlets. The report at the same time neglects to state the statistical fact that these immigrants will be joining an already established Bangladeshi community whose birthrates, in common with those of all Asian communities, are vastly in excess of those of the indigenous British.

The committee goes on to speak of the need for "urgent action" which must be taken "to avert a crisis."

RACE CRISIS

As anyone can see, Britain already has a crisis resulting from the policies deliberately pursued by the politicians of Westminster over the past 40 years, whereby it has been turned into a 'multi-racial society' with non-white elements that have been allowed to entrench themselves in ever-expanding enclaves from which they are continually dispersing themselves across the length and breadth of our country. But this typical cross-section of the politicians from all the old gang parties is very far from wishing either to deal with this existing crisis or prevent the impending worsening of the crisis predicted in their own report — which could and should be done by stopping immigration and starting repatriation. On the contrary, they recommend that huge benefits, which will represent a vast new burden on the nation's resources, should be extended to these immigrants as they arrive!

This is a course of action which any Briton with average common sense should be able to see is absolutely tailor-made to encourage even more Third World immigration, as Afro-Asians not unnaturally conclude that the British must be a bunch of weak patsies who can be milked indefinitely to provide them with standards of living that they could never dream of in their impoverished lands of origin.

It is proposed by the parliamentary Race Relations Committee that new Bangladeshi immigrants should be given all sorts of priorities because it is claimed that they are 'deprived'. The MPs who produced the report do not trouble to explain why these Bangladeshis should so eagerly continue to flock into Britain at such a rate if, when they arrive here, they find conditions of 'deprivation' so bad!

It is proposed in the report that these minorities should be given priority over others in nursery teaching and that special provision should be made in every area to teach them English, since, according to its claims, the plight which ethnic minorities are said to be suffering in Britain is attributed to their lack of an ability to speak the English language.

'ETHNIC MONITORING'

A further proposal is that 'ethnic monitoring' should be introduced to ensure that Bangladeshis and other minorities are not 'discriminated against' in the allocation of houses or jobs in council work forces. This proposal comes during a period of disastrous unemployment for British workers, thrown on the scrapheap by the present government's catastrophic economic policies. Clearly, if the recommendations of the report are carried out, unemployment among native Britons will further increase.

Still they pour in

WESTMINSTER TRAITORS OPEN THE FLOODGATES TO NON-WHITE IMMIGRANT TIDE

"SORRY, BUT IF WE LET YOU HUSBANDS AND FIANCÉS IN THIS COUNTRY WOULD BECOME SWAMPED!"

The Chairman of the House of Commons Race Relations Committee, John Wheeler, Tory MP for Westminster North (a constituency with large numbers of coloured voters) makes clear the committee's intentions when

'Softly, softly' policing caused Tottenham mayhem

APPALLING FACTS have become public in the trial of 6 defendants accused of taking part in the murder of Police Constable Keith Blakelock, who was hacked to death during the 1985 race riot on Broadwater Farm Estate in Tottenham, North London — Britain's worst ever riot.

Most horrifying is the evidence of a complete lack of will, amounting to virtual paralysis, on the part of the authorities in face of the kind of violence that occurred in Tottenham. Senior police officers — who can only be assumed to have been acting in accordance with the standing directives of their political masters — utterly failed to commit adequate forces, or use those they had in an effective manner, so as to crush at its outset the insurrection with which they were faced — as could and should have been done.

In his opening statement Prosecutor Roy Amlot revealed a catalogue of disgraceful weakness and failure on the part of those in authority. Up to 3 hours before PC Blakelock's murder, in Mr. Amlot's words, "it was apparent that an ugly riot had started." PC Blakelock was nevertheless sent as part of a pitifully small group of 11 officers to defend a fire brigade team attempting to extinguish a fire deliberately started by the rioters — probably with the intention of drawing firemen and police into a trap.

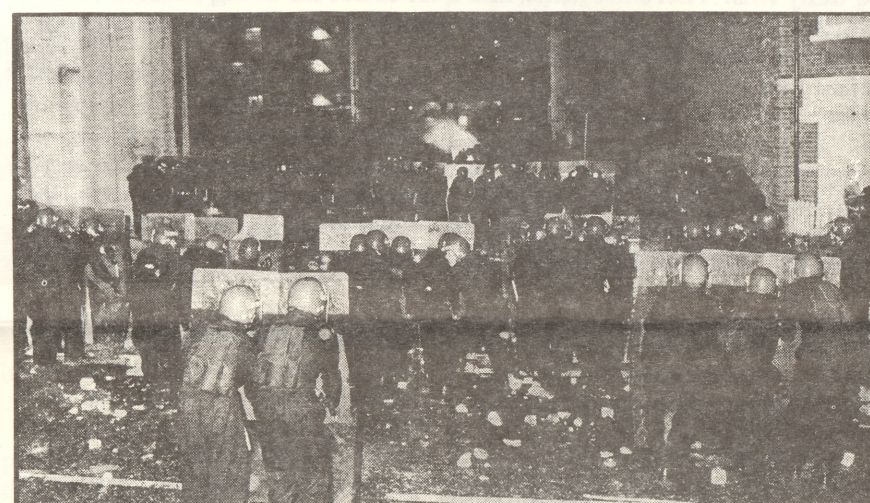

The 11 policemen were ambushed by a 200-strong mob armed with machetes, knives, swords, javelins and petrol bombs. Blakelock's colleagues had no choice but to flee for their lives. Too few in number to intervene, they could only look on powerlessly as PC Blakelock himself, trapped on his own and caught by the mob, was chopped to pieces in what can only be described as a sadistic orgy of jungle savagery. Quoting a statement by one of the accused, Mr. Amlot said that the mob evidently intended to sever the PC's head and mount it on a pole in the grass clearing facing the police as a gesture of contempt for the forces of law and order.

ILL-EQUIPPED

ped only with puny little shields and truncheons, were allowed to do no more than 'contain' the rising mayhem by standing passively in a cordon at the exits to the estate as the riot continued, thus providing the rioters with a row of 'Aunt Sallies'.

'Meanwhile, hopelessly outnumbered and ill-equipped police reserves were all that the authorities would allow to be committed for riot control. Whilst they were bombarded with lethal missiles and fired on by snipers with guns, police equipped only with puny little shields and truncheons were allowed to do no more than 'contain' the rising mayhem by standing passively in a cordon at the exits to the estate as the riot continued, thus providing the rioters with a row of 'Aunt Sallies'.'

As a result, no fewer than 250 police officers were injured whilst very few rioters were hurt at all. Mr. Amlot remarked: "To a large extent, the police simply 'took it'."

These feeble tactics in handling an overwhelmingly black mob (in fact described by a senior fire officer who was present as 95 per-cent black) are in sharp contrast to the aggressive methods which police have (often quite rightly) used to quell disorders involving Whites, whether violent picketing such as at Wapping, football hooliganism or 'hippie' trespassers on farming land. This difference in tactics has no other explanation than he states as its primary concern that the immigrants should "be absorbed into mainstream British society."

Plainly, the intention of these multi-racialists, whose views on the race issue dominate the thinking of all the major parties, is deliberately to flood Britain with ever more Afro-Asian immigrants in order then to force racial integration by all means thought necessary upon the British people.

THE SOLUTION

If these politicians were as concerned as they say they are to achieve good 'race relations' they should realise that such relations will only be worsened by a continuation of the immigrant flood. By far the best way to avoid growing racial conflict is to separate the ethnic minority groups from the native British by repatriating the former to their homelands.

These politicians are knowingly working for the ruin of their own country and people, and as such can earn no other description than that of traitors. We must ensure that when Nationalism is victorious in Britain, as it one day will be, these people are rooted out of their ratholes and given the fate that all traitors deserve. In the long history of our nation, men have been hanged for far lesser acts of national betrayal.

the total commitment of the political masters of the police to the cause of multi-racialism and to the avoidance, at all costs, of offending the ethnic minorities lest they lose the latter's votes.

In the long term this policy is not in the interests either of white or black, as it will result in an increasing feeling on the part of the host community in Britain that Blacks are to be accorded especially favoured treatment by the law.

ROOT OF THE PROBLEM

The root of the problem of Tottenham is the obvious determination of government to enforce multi-racialism on what was once a homogeneous white country, where no problem of race conflict existed and no machinery of 'community relations' was ever regarded as necessary. The people who have conspired to bring about this change in Britain are indirectly responsible for the gruesome death of PC Blakelock.

Of course there are many members of the racial minorities who are law-abiding and who have been appalled at what happened at Tottenham just as much as we Whites are. It is wrong that they should be scapegoats for the actions of the black hooligans who caused the trouble.

Nevertheless, Tottenham was an indication of the complete failure of racial integration. As long as there is an element within the black community, albeit only a minority element, that feels so alienated from white society that it must riot and murder in this way, that is sure proof that multi-racialism creates far more problems than it solves and should be abandoned — before there is all-out race war in Britain, from which innocent Blacks as well as innocent Whites will suffer horribly.

We have always maintained that repatriation is the only answer: repatriation of the ethnic minority groups to their original homelands. But pending the achievement of that solution there must be no more pussyfooting by police in the face of rioting of the kind that took place at Tottenham. At the first sign of such trouble as occurred on that terrible night, the police should be authorised to go in heavy and hard, to winkle out the trouble-makers before things get out of control.

In other words, there should be no more special 'concessions' in the application of the law where it affects racial minorities — regardless of whether it results in the loss of immigrant votes.

Tories toady for queer vote

IN A well-publicised visit to a hospital ward given over to AIDS cases in San Francisco, often regarded as the queer Mecca of the United States (with a homosexual network sufficiently powerful to get by-laws passed banning so-called 'discrimination' against homosexuals), Britain's Secretary of Health Norman Fowler had himself photographed clasping the hand of a queer dying from the killer disease.

This picture of a cabinet minister truckling to queers has been widely disseminated throughout the Tory press along with Mr. Fowler's explanations for his special 'fact-finding' tour of San Francisco, the 'AIDS Capital of the World'. Mr. Fowler remarked how "moved and impressed" he had been by the struggle of the homosexual with whom he had shaken hands, disregarding the fact that the latter and his kind brought this lethal disease upon themselves by their degenerate behaviour, and have been the principal agents in spreading it from Africa and the Caribbean — in which places it first arose — far and wide into the United States, Britain and the rest of the Western World, through the uncontrolled practice of their perversions.

'COMPASSION'

Mr. Fowler further maintained that "we owe AIDS patients a duty of compassion," and suggested that the vastly expensive nursing care enjoyed by these patients in San Francisco, the great majority of them queers, should be introduced in Britain. This follows a long period during which the present government has been cutting back on the national health service.

CRAWLING FOR VOTES
Fowler shakes the hand of San Francisco queer

This conspicuous display of official concern for homosexuals and their interests is explicable only by the fact that the Tories see in the homo network yet another minority element to be placated and bribed so that its political support can be enlisted at election time. In fact this network of corruption extends deeply into all areas of the ruling establishment. Its representatives are present in such centres of power as the mass media and the old parties. Indeed the Conservative Party itself has an officially recognised 'Gay Rights' group, in spite of Mrs. Thatcher's public posturing as a champion of traditional values.

This is the state of affairs that has come into being in a serious way since the laws against homosexual practices were repealed in the 1960s.

PANSIES' CHARTER

At that time it was claimed that the 'Pansies' Charter' legalising "homosexual acts between consenting adults in private" would merely have the effect of allowing individual homos quietly to get on with their perverse behaviour without this in any way affecting normal and decent people. The whole thing was done in the name of 'compassion'.

The current spread of AIDS, largely as a result of the massive explosion of homo promiscuity following the introduction of such 'permissive' reforms, clearly shows how queer sexual behaviour is not just a private matter — having now produced a major threat to public health which is of concern to all. This is particularly so since there are means whereby this hideous disease can be communicated to normal people.

If it was the appeal to 'compassion' that 20 years ago got the queers their charter, it is the same appeal to 'compassion' that is today getting them special consideration and the likelihood of special benefits at the expense of decent society. It is the latter that, in all senses, ends up footing the bill for the disaster that the homos and their supporters have brought about. This appeal to 'compassion' is nothing better than a device, a form of emotional blackmail, which has become the standard means by which organised minorities get the unorganised majority into their power, so that they can live parasitically at our expense.

KOW-TOWING

Whether out of cowardice at the power of the homo minority and its political network, or out of cynical calculation of the benefits of the political support that this network can supply, Norman Fowler finds it

ANDERTON AND WIFE
Threatened with violence by queer lobby expedient, as is so common with Britain's contemporary politicians, to play the minority game. Instead of proposing, as a necessary measure of hygiene in meeting the AIDS threat, the restoration of the laws against homosexuality, he goes along with what the queers demand.

'CESSPIT'

If there were any doubt as to the power that the homo element has been given, this should be dispelled by the fate of one of Britain's most senior policemen, Chief Constable of Greater Manchester James Anderton. Giving expression to what plainly represents the moral consensus of the decent British majority, Anderton accurately characterised the AIDS plague by speaking of the homosexuals responsible as people "swirling around in a cesspit of their own making."

CAMPAIGN OF HATRED

Immediately, an hysterical campaign of hatred and ridicule was launched against him by powerful sections of politics and the media. He and his wife were even threatened with physical violence, and pressure is now being exerted to oust him from his post. This campaign was led by the extreme left, Labour-dominated Manchester Police Committee. Manchester's far left local authority is committed to promoting homo power, among its other pro-minority stances.

No establishment voice, whether from the Tory government or from the media, has been raised in Anderton's defence.

Cause for reflection

The following was stated in The Jewish Chronicle of October 17th 1986:-

"Jews in general and Israel in particular have come in for some unexpected — not to say embarrassing — praise from an unusual source — Mr. Jean-Marie Le Pen, leader of the French extreme right-wing National Front Party."

"Interviewed in his office in parliament, Mr. Le Pen strongly denied that his party was racist, saying that membership was 'most certainly open to Jews.'"

YOUR LETTERS

Sir, — I am writing in connection with your article in the December issue on AIDS. As there is now so much public concern with regard to the AIDS problem, would it not be a good idea to write a feature and quote some of the speeches made during the House of Commons debate when the government of the day brought in the Act which legalised homosexuality in the 1960s — especially those speeches in favour of legalising homosexuality. I think this would be good ammunition for BNP candidates in the forthcoming election.

(We would be glad to print quotes from the speeches mentioned — if someone would care to send us the records of them. Ed.)

Sir, — I've read about your members making a sledgehammer attack on the statue of Nelson Mandela in London. Well done! I hope you will ensure that this statue remains obliterated, including the plinth that goes with it.

What about a go at another statue of a notorious marxist, Karl Marx himself, in a certain London cemetery?

E. ROBERTS

Sir, — Recently there has been a big hue and cry about the ridiculously lenient sentences given to the Ealing Vicarage rapists, and there is now more talk of further legislation to ensure stiffer mandatory penalties for rape.

All this is fair enough, but in my opinion legislation alone is not sufficient. We have got to tackle at root the system and climate which produces specimens like Judge Leonard, who passed the sentences on the rapists. As long as the benches of Britain are occupied by so many soft-headed 'bleeding-heart' liberals like this judge, penalties handed down by the courts for vicious criminals are going to continue to be completely inadequate.

BLACK MANAGERS FOR B.B.C.

MR. BILL COTTON, Television Managing Director of the BBC, recently said that the Corporation should appoint black managers, even if they have no experience of broadcasting. He added: "We need people who can bring with them an influence that comes from being black, and who know the advantages and disadvantages that has." Mr. Cotton has also called on BBC local radio stations to discriminate positively in the way of recruitment in areas of high ethnic minority populations.

UNION JACK

IT HAS been reported that the Government intends to repeal the Ulster Flags and Emblems Act, passed by the Stormont Parliament in 1954. The Act made it an offence to interfere with any display of the Union Jack. The Government apparently wishes to relegate the Union Jack to the same status as the Irish Tricolour in order to obtain the approval of the Dublin Government. It is also reported that the Government intends to extend the Public Order Act to Northern Ireland as a means of banning Loyalist marches and preventing Loyalists from organising self-defence bodies against the IRA terror.

BRITISH ARMS FOR MOZAMBIQUE

THE GOVERNMENT has agreed to provide aid of £1.6 million to the Marxist Government of Mozambique to enable it to buy 600 Enfield L851A rifles, a new model which is only now being supplied to the British Army. The Government has also announced that it will allow former soldiers of the SAS to go to train the Mozambique Army. Mozambique, as is well known, is an inveterate enemy of White South Africa, her neighbour.

OUR FRIEND THE MILKMAN: NEW VERSION

BRITISH PEOPLE are well used to the familiar sight of the milkman on his rounds, driving his small milk float and departing from it to place bottles at the doors of his customers. Well, in some areas it looks as if this is going to be a thing of the past.

In a report in The Sunday Times recently it was described how milkmen doing their deliveries in certain 'inner-city' districts have encountered constant attacks, both on themselves and on their vehicles. Now a new system for delivering milk in these districts is being devised. The familiar milk float will be replaced by a new vehicle more resembling an armoured car. The milkman, instead of leaving it to place the milk by doorways, will remain inside and summon his customers by some kind of klaxon. They will then come out and queue up at the back of the armoured vehicle, where he will serve them over a counter designed like that of a bank, with a special screen. The milk will at all times be packed in cartons, so as to avoid providing bottles that may afterwards be used as missiles.

The Sunday Times accompanied its write-up on this new development with a sketch of the new type of milk delivery van, which we reproduce here. It will be noticed that one of the customers peacefully purchasing his milk is black. What the article did not mention was the fact that the areas where the new delivery system is most needed are areas of high black concentration — North Peckham Estate in South London being one.

Such are things in 1987.

One pint or two? Metal grilles, steel plates and reinforced glass would protect the new-model milkman from his customers

Mandela statue case MORAL VICTORY FOR B.N.P. MEN

BRITISH NATIONAL PARTY activists Richard Edmonds, Ian Dell and Liam Kernaghan achieved a moral victory in the final outcome of the court action brought against them for wilful damage done to the statue of Nelson Mandela on London's South Bank.

The three men were arrested last year in the act of taking a sledgehammer to the bust of the African terrorist leader. The three pleaded guilty to the charge brought against them and justified their action in terms of the widespread public disgust at the erection of the statue on the authorisation of the now-defunct far left Greater London Council.

After several postponements, the trial of the three took place at the beginning of this month. Each received a six-month jail sentence suspended for eighteen months, and in addition each was ordered to pay £50 costs. As it was clearly the hope of the BNP's opponents that the three men would go to prison and be landed with substantial costs and damages, this result must represent a great triumph for the BNP and the men charged. In fact the almost derisory award of £50 costs against the men was recognised by everyone in the court as a virtual compliment.

Where the claim for damages is concerned, defending counsel for the men told the court that there had been several attacks on the statue and that, since the one in question, there had been a further one as a result of which it had been completely destroyed by fire. Therefore the task of assessing what damage had been caused by the BNP men in terms of financial loss was virtually impossible. Originally a sum of £3,800 had been mentioned but this seemed absurd in the light of subsequent events. In the outcome the court ruled that the matter of damages was something which the trustees for the statue would have to take up with the defendants, if they so wished, by means of civil action.

Although the ultimate financial penalties imposed upon the three men were not large, they did incur some substantial expenses in the way of their own legal representation, Richard Edmonds himself having footed the bill for this to the extent of £572.

We feel that there will be many readers who will wish to help the men pay these bills, totalling £722. All contributions for this purpose should be sent to BNP Head Office address at: PO Box 446, London SE23 2LS.

Reds react hysterically to BNP in W. Yorks

ACTIVITIES by the British National Party and other nationalists in the West Yorkshire area have alarmed local left-wingers to the point where the latter have now started a frenzied campaign, in their own words, to "smash the fascist threat."

In Leeds, the Leeds Anti-Fascist Action group has combined with Leeds Trades Council in a special 'Week of Action' against the nationalists, taking place this month. This has included two public meetings and a literature campaign.

Teams of red mobsters have also started, for the first time in several years, to try to intimidate BNP and other nationalist paper sales teams. The method has been to turn up at sales pitches in numbers sufficient to overwhelm the nationalists. The BNP, however, has already started to make its own security arrangements to combat this attempted intimidation, and extra forces have been drafted in to assist and protect the paper sellers. The BNP in the area has made it very clear that it will not be beaten off the streets but will defend itself vigorously against any opposition threat. We will bring readers up to date in later issues with how this conflict is going.

Other activists get vicious penalties

IN CONTRAST to the largely successful outcome of the Mandela statue case, two further court actions have resulted in vicious penalties being imposed on BNP members.

Two young activists of Lewisham Branch, Paul Reynolds and Michael Harvey, were recently convicted for putting up party stickers and posters on unauthorised sites. While the party leadership does not officially condone this, we nevertheless believe that the punishment handed out to the two was grossly excessive. Despite neither having any previous convictions, each was fined £100 and ordered to pay £50 costs. An indication of the mentality of the magistrate sentencing the two was given in his comment that he found "most offensive" one sticker which said nothing more than 'Love the White Race: Protect its future!'

We feel sure that many party supporters will wish to help the two raise the money to pay their fines and costs. Donations should be sent to PO Box 446, London SE23 2LS.

In Yorkshire, six party activists, also young, were ordered to pay a total of no less than £1,500 in fines and costs as a result of an incident occurring on the occasion of the Remembrance Day parade in York last November. A group of left-wingers sorely provoked the young men by chanting obscene slogans and spitting at elderly war veterans on the parade. A fight ensued during which the six BNP men were arrested. Despite the provocative behaviour of the left-wingers, no arrests were made of any of them.

Should anyone wish to give help in paying these fines and costs, would they please send their contributions to the Yorkshire Regional Headquarters address at: PO Box BR10, Bramley, Leeds 13.

Get these books while you can!

Some of the books on sale from BNP Book Service will no longer be available from the 1st April, these dealing with racial topics in a way liable to render them illegal under the new legislation contained in the Public Order Act of 1986. You can still order them if you are quick about it by writing, with cash with order, to: BNP Book Service, PO Box 446, London SE23 2LS. We list some of the books below:-

THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS (Jean Raspail) £2.40 (£1). A sensational novel about the destruction of the white world by Asian immigrant invasion. 1973, 311pp.

DID SIX MILLION REALLY DIE? (Richard Harwood) 50p (13p). The fact-filled pamphlet that refutes the Holocaust legends and evoked Zionist frenzy. 28pp.

THE DISPOSSESSED MAJORITY (Wilmot Robertson) £7.50 (£1.90). This book has attracted worldwide attention, dealing as it does with racial problems in America — and not simply the black-white situation. 2nd edition 1981, 613pp.

VENTILATIONS (Wilmot Robertson) £4.50 (37p). The sequel to the same author's widely acclaimed Dispossessed Majority. Revised edition 1982, 113pp.

RACE AND REALITY (Carleton Putnam) £4.00 (43p). A companion volume and supplement to Race and Reason, showing how the truth about the race issue has been suppressed by interested parties. 1967 (rep. 1977), 192pp.

NATURE'S ETERNAL RELIGION (Ben

Klassen) £6.70 (£1.00). A controversial and hard-hitting book outlining the author's ideal of a new religion based on the right to survival of the white race. The author in presenting his ideas on this matter makes it plain who represents the threat to white survival. 1973, 508pp.

THE WHITE MAN'S BIBLE (Ben Klassen) £6.70 (£1.00). A companion volume to the same author's Nature's Eternal Religion in which he expands his concept of Creativity as the future religion of the white race. 1981, 451pp.

EXPANDING CREATIVITY (Ben Klassen) £4.20 (55p). A selection of the best articles written by the author in his paper Racial Loyalty. 1985, 255pp.

BUILDING A WHITER AND BRIGHTER WORLD (Ben Klassen) £4.20 (56p). A follow-on from Expanding Creativity, containing a further selection of articles from later issues of Racial Loyalty. 1985, 270pp.

THE SIX MILLION RECONSIDERED (W. Grimstad) £2.50 (66p). Examines not only the 'Holocaust' but other topics involved in the Jewish Question, including the exploitation of the 'anti-semitic' smear. 1977, 170pp.

WHAT WE STAND FOR

- The return of leadership and statesmanship to British affairs.
- A government that will put British interests first.
- British withdrawal from the European Common Market.
- Closer links with the White Commonwealth.
- Protection of British industry by the selective exclusion of foreign manufactured goods from Britain.
- A sane financial system that will give to the people the purchasing power to buy the goods they produce.
- The revival of British farming.
- British ownership and control of British industry and resources.
- A clamp-down on social security spongers and the restoration of the incentive to work — with the proviso that work is locally available.
- An end to immigration and a start to repatriation.
- British support for the Whites in South Africa.
- An end to financial aid to corrupt Third World regimes.
- The strengthening of Britain's defences.
- Tougher treatment of criminals.
- The smashing of the IRA, the death penalty for terrorists and firm support for the Loyalist majority in Northern Ireland.
- Repealing of the laws permitting Abortion and Homosexuality and a general toughening up of legislation against the promotion of obscenity in the media.
- The elimination of Communism in Britain, in the mass media, in the factory and in the schoolroom.
